Play @ the Square

A new playspace for Manley Square

Hume City Council is planning to replace the playspace at Manley Square in Roxburgh Park.

The old playspace was removed in recent months as it was considered unsafe due to regular vandalism.

We know this playspace is a concern for the local community and we need your help in designing a new one. The new playspace will be a similar size to the previous one, but its location could be moved and the style of equipment could be different.

We want to hear from children, young people, parents and carers about what you would like to see considered at the new playspace.

Complete the survey (enclosed or online), draw a picture, participate in the Pop Up Design Workshop, call or email us.

Together we can find a solution to make this a playspace that's used and looked after by the local community.
